

Forum Humanum Claremont Conference Grants 2020

Call for Papers

Each year the Claremont Annual Philosophy of Religion Conference brings together thinkers from different religions, traditions, and academic disciplines to discuss one particular theme in the fields of Religion, Theology and Philosophy of Religion. The theme of the 41st conference will be Autonomy, Diversity and the Common Good. The conference will be held at Claremont Graduate University, Claremont, California, on February 6-8, 2020. Speakers will include: Richard Amesbury (Arizona State University); Clare Carlisle (King's College London), Jörg Dierken (Halle), Nils Ole Oermann (Lüneburg/St. Gallen), Michael Puett (Harvard); Francis Schussler Fiorenza (Harvard); Linn Tonstadt (Yale); Graham Ward (Oxford); Elliot Wolfson (UCSB).

The Udo Keller Foundation Forum Humanum (Hamburg) has generously provided 10 conference grants ($2200 each) to enable doctoral students and new PhDs (not earlier than 2015) to participate in the conference. The grant is meant to cover all expenses. Recipients will have the opportunity to attend the conference on Friday and Saturday and to present a paper (15 double-spaced pages) on the topic of the conference. To create space for the discussion of their contributions, a pre-conference seminar will be held on Thursday, February 6, on the same topic as the main conference. All grant recipients will be expected to participate in this seminar and introduce not their own but one of the other papers for discussion. Five papers will be chosen for publication along with the conference contributions in the Claremont Studies of Philosophy of Religion (Mohr Siebeck Tübingen).

We invite doctoral students and recent PhDs to submit a one-page CV and a 5-page abstract of their proposed paper on the topic of 'Autonomy, Diversity and the Common Good' (word, double-spaced, anonymous for blind review). For a more detailed description of the conference topic, see <http://www.cgu.edu/pofrconference>. Applications should be sent by email to
